

Mike Staver Introduction

NOTE TO INTRODUCER: Mike has no ego attached to this introduction. If you want to use it, great! If you don't want to use it, feel free not to! If there is something else you would rather say, feel free to.

It is hard to know what an audience wants to hear about a speaker before he speaks. I generally think that most audiences would rather skip this part and get on with the talk. But just in case you need to know a little something about him:

- Mike Staver is the author of “Leadership Isn’t for Cowards” and an internationally respected speaker and coach to leaders across North America.
- He holds a Bachelors in Business Administration and a Masters in Counseling Psychology.
- Some of Mike’s work was recently ranked #1 by Training Magazine on their list of top learning and development programs in the world.
- Mike's leadership lessons have been hard learned over the last 30 years in the trenches of businesses from health care to high-end security and surveillance.

There’s probably more but let’s skip that for now and get on with what he has to say. Please help me in welcoming MIKE STAVER!!
